

No company can remain a thriving business for over 75 years if they don't provide dependable service. At Shellhorn & Hill, dependability and quality customer service are basic components of doing business.

Dependability comes from creating then administering companywide processes that allow us to handle large volumes of oil deliveries and service calls during peak season while still performing installations and system maintenance. From our state-of-the-art computer systems that efficiently route delivery and service trucks to minimize drive time to our well trained staff that are committed to servicing your needs, we put a daily focus on customer service. However, the most important part of dependability is having involved management that cares. The Hill family is dedicated to providing excellent service and maintaining your satisfaction now and for years to come.
